Our Vision

Why do work clothes need to be boring? The question occurred to Rebecka Ardo in 2015. With a background as a surgical nurse and many years of sales experience within dental she realized that the industry was missing something – modern professional uniforms.

A lucky coincidence brought her and the award-winning designer Cathrine Edblad together and the wheel started to spin. A collection of unique uniforms took shape and Wear at Work's first production had started.

The result was a product line of easily combined garments in breathable and durable fabrics. Comfortable garments that are carefully worked through in both fit and detail.

Our ambition is to be part of the development and improvement of future work wear for industries with high demands on both comfort and aesthetics.

Cathrine Edblad
Founder/Head of Design

Creating uniforms that combine style with comfort and function is the foundation of the company and will always be what drives us forward.

We want to create products that not only delight you who will wear them, but also your customers. In sectors where competition is high, a professional and original expression can be crucial.

With the design in focus, our clothes shall be representative, attractive and add something to you and your business.

GARMENT MEASUREMENTS

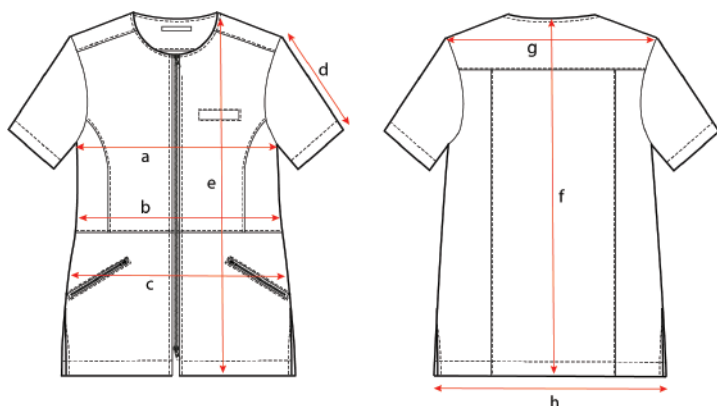

Pls note that these measurements aren't body measurements.

The garment is measured when laying flat on the ground.

The measurements are approximate and might vary between garments.

Pls also note that we make a difference between whole and half (1/2) measurements.

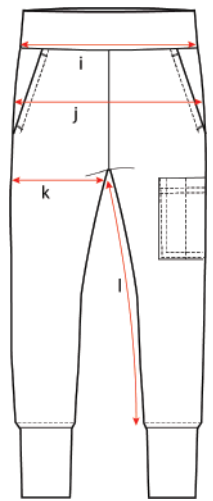

Whole measurements are measured around the whole garment while half measurements only are measured at front.
